A NOVEL

/4

As to the wretched party left behind, it could scarcely be said which of the three, who were completely rational, was suffering most: Captain Wentworth, Anne, or Charles, who, really a very affectionate brother, hung over Louisa with sobs of grief, and could only turn his eyes from one sister, to see the other in a state as insensible, or to witness the hysterical agitations of his wife, calling on him for help which he could not give.

ADVERBS	ADJECTIVES

B. Now highlight all adjectives and adverbs yourself in the second extract and again identify them as either adjectives and adverbs.

`Anne, Anne,' cried Charles, `What is to be done next? What, in heaven's name, is to be done next?'

Captain Wentworth's eyes were also turned towards her.

`Had not she better be carried to the inn? Yes, I am sure: carry her gently to the inn.'

`Yes, yes, to the inn,' repeated Captain Wentworth, comparatively collected, and eager to be doing something. I will carry her myself. Musgrove, take care of the others.'

By this time the report of the accident had spread among the workmen and boatmen about the Cobb, and many were collected near them, to be useful if wanted, at any rate, to enjoy the sight of a dead young lady, nay, two dead young ladies, for it proved twice as fine as the first report. To some of the best-looking of these good people Henrietta was consigned, for, though partially revived, she was quite helpless; and in this manner, Anne walking by her side, and Charles attending to his wife, they set forward, treading back with feelings unutterable, the ground, which so lately, so very lately, and so light of heart, they had passed along.

ADVERBS	ADJECTIVES

C. Complete the text with appropriate words from the list. Change adjectives into adverbs where necessary.

I was aware that a rite of passage of au pairing was the father of the family forcing his attentions on the hired help, and was...... the day Madame, aformer model, headed off to visit some friends in Paris. As expected, Mr Dufoy started to spend a lot more time in my company. Iworked out, however, that it wasn't me he was interested in but theIrish girl who was au-pairing for a family down the road. It was she, not I, who ended up being lunged at in the BMW. Yet M Dufoy and I had other dramas. The Dufoys had a, grey-haired cook, named, Reine. On her day off I had to prepare M Dufoy's lunch. Asked for salade niçoise, I was – we hadn't had this in Yorkshire – andrang Reine for explication. 'Pas de problème,' she declared, listing the ingredients, 'tomatoes, tuna, anchovies, lettuce, capers, spring onions, olives and an egg.' threw the whole lot together and carried itinto the dining room. M Dufoy peeredinto the bowl. 'The egg,' he said eventually, stirring a fork amid themess, 'is supposed to be cooked.'
